State Board of Regents Names Members of Dixie State University Presidential Search Committee

SALT LAKE CITY – The Board of Regents has named a 22-member committee to search for the next president of Dixie State University. Current President Stephen Nadauld, who announced his retirement in October, will remain in office until a new president of DSU is selected and takes office. Regent Wilford Clyde will lead the committee, which is comprised of representatives from the Board of Regents, trustees, faculty, staff, students, and alumni of DSU, as well as community members from throughout Dixie State’s service region. A complete list of the search committee membership follows below. The search committee will hold several public meetings in early 2014 to obtain input from members of the DSU community and the general public on the presidential search. More information about these meetings will be posted on higheredutah.org/presidentialsearches as it becomes available.
